UMBRELLA THEME

From Growth Market to Global Growth Leader: The India Opportunity

Over the last few years, the global economy has been reshaped by geopolitical disruptions, supply-chain realignments, technological breakthroughs, climate challenges and a fundamental reconfiguration of international trade.

Yet, amidst this uncertainty, one economy continues to command the attention of global investors, technology leaders and multinational corporations: India.

Today, India is no longer viewed merely as a large consumer market. It is increasingly being recognised as a strategic investment destination, a trusted manufacturing partner, a technology and innovation hub, a digital powerhouse and an important pillar of global economic resilience.

The growing confidence in India is reflected in a series of large-scale investment announcements made by leading global corporations and sovereign investors during 2026.

Australian data centre operator AirTrunk has committed US$30 billion to build 5 GW of data centre capacity in India by 2030, strengthening India’s ambitions in artificial intelligence and cloud infrastructure.

Amazon has increased its India investment commitment to US$48 billion by 2030, with substantial investments directed towards AI, cloud computing, logistics and digital infrastructure.

India's semiconductor ambitions are equally significant. The Government of India has committed more than US$21 billion in incentives, with a roadmap for fabrication plants, OSAT facilities and compound semiconductor plants.

The country's clean energy transition is creating another powerful investment narrative. The India-Japan partnership has resulted in Rs 67,000 crore of investments in green ammonia and green methanol projects in Odisha.

Global investors continue to deepen their India commitments. Temasek, whose India portfolio has expanded to US$42 billion, intends to increase investments in manufacturing, industrials and artificial intelligence.

Several structural factors are driving this unprecedented global interest

1. Expanding digital public infrastructure
2. Political stability and policy continuity
3. Rapidly growing domestic consumption
4. Production-linked incentive schemes
5. Semiconductor and electronics incentives
6. PM Gati Shakti infrastructure
7. Complete domestic value chains
8. AI, quantum, robotics and space
9. Green hydrogen, renewables and storage
10. Expanding FTAs and global partnerships

In his Independence Day address, the Prime Minister articulated the Saptadhara framework for Viksit Bharat, identifying seven strategic pillars for India's growth:

- Manufacturing power
- Agriculture and food processing
- Technology and innovation
- Gati Shakti and logistics
- Defence
- Green and blue economy
- India's soft power

The objective of IMC Bharat Calling 2027 is to position India as one of the world's most attractive destinations for investment, innovation and long-term strategic partnerships by showcasing emerging opportunities across artificial intelligence, semiconductors, advanced manufacturing, biotech, clean energy, digital infrastructure and global trade.

The conference will create a platform for meaningful dialogue among policymakers, global investors, industry leaders, entrepreneurs, technology innovators and academia; identify policy interventions; strengthen India's integration into global value chains; and develop actionable recommendations for Viksit Bharat 2047.

Inaugural Session

India@2047: The World's Growth Engine - Investing in Innovation, Manufacturing and Sustainable Prosperity

The inaugural session will examine the factors that have positioned India as one of the most preferred destinations for global capital as businesses reassess supply chains, investment strategies and market priorities. It will explore India's transformation from a large consumer market into an emerging global manufacturing and innovation hub, supported by policy reforms, infrastructure development, digital transformation and a strong domestic market. The panel will also consider the vision of Viksit Bharat 2047, India's strategic position amid geopolitical uncertainty, and the policy framework and growth drivers that will shape the country's economic trajectory over the coming decades.

Session I

AI, Digital Infrastructure and the Semiconductor Revolution

This session will examine artificial intelligence as India's next major growth multiplier and how the country can leverage its digital ecosystem, talent pool and innovation capabilities to become a global technology leader. It will cover sovereign AI, cloud computing and hyperscale data centres; a globally competitive semiconductor ecosystem; resilient supply chains; industry-academia collaboration; R&D; incentives; digital infrastructure; regulatory clarity; talent; data governance; cybersecurity; and a secure, trustworthy and inclusive AI governance framework.

Session II

Manufacturing 2.0 - Building Global Value Chains in India

This session will examine India's transition towards Manufacturing 2.0 and its growing role in global value chains as businesses diversify supply chains and seek resilient, reliable and cost-competitive manufacturing destinations. It will focus on Make in India, advanced manufacturing, technology-led production, automation, innovation and complete domestic value chains - from design and component manufacturing to finished products - along with the infrastructure, logistics, ease of doing business, labour, land, skills, R&D, trade and policy reforms needed to strengthen India as a preferred global manufacturing hub.

Session III

Green Growth - India's Energy Transition and New Industrial Economy

This session will focus on India's transition to a low-carbon economy and green energy as a driver of industrial growth, investment and competitiveness. It will explore green hydrogen and ammonia, renewable energy, storage, industrial decarbonisation and opportunities across renewable generation, green molecules, battery storage, transmission, sustainable fuels and green manufacturing. The discussion will also address policy certainty, incentives, carbon markets, infrastructure, approvals, R&D, technology transfer, export support, green finance and public-private partnerships required to attract investment at scale.

Session IV

Geopolitics, Trade Agreements and the Future of Global Business

This session will examine how shifting geopolitical dynamics are reshaping trade, investment, manufacturing networks and economic partnerships. It will focus on India's expanding free trade agreements and strategic partnerships; opportunities for exporters, manufacturers, MSMEs and services firms; supply-chain resilience; market access; and technology transfer. Deliberations will cover export promotion, trade facilitation, logistics, standards harmonisation, regulatory simplification, digital trade, export finance, skills, market intelligence, cluster-based manufacturing and support for MSMEs across high-opportunity sectors.

Session V - CEO Plenary

India 2035: Where Will the Next Trillion Dollars Come From?

The CEO Plenary will bring together business leaders, investors and policymakers to examine the drivers expected to shape India's growth over the next decade. It will explore capital markets, rising incomes and consumption, urbanisation, technology and AI, healthcare, financial services and entrepreneurship. The panel will identify opportunities for domestic and global investors and consider reforms spanning finance, regulation, startups, R&D, intellectual property, digital infrastructure, skills, public-private partnerships and long-term capital formation.

VALEDICTORY SESSION

States as the Engines of Growth, Calling Global Investors to Explore and Establish

As India’s commercial and financial capital, Maharashtra demonstrates how a state can leverage manufacturing, financial services, infrastructure, technology, exports, logistics, innovation and entrepreneurship to contribute to national growth. The session will position India’s states as dynamic, reform-oriented and investment-ready destinations, highlighting opportunities across sectors and inviting global investors to partner with states building world-class infrastructure, policy ecosystems and innovation clusters.
